

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

the emigrant is to show him that America understands problems which are vital to those he left behind in Europe. At any rate, they tend to create an atmosphere of good will and mutual understanding, which is, perhaps, a condition precedent to all real efforts at Americanization of our population of various origins.

NEW YORK CITY.

CHARLES PERGLER.

REPAID

Sir,—I subscribed for the five War Numbers of THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW and have been well repaid. Sometimes I felt you were most too eulogistic of Mr. Wilson, the follower, and not the leader of the American people, as Our Colonel aptly calls him. Still, wishing to be truly patriotic, I acquiesce; but must think for myself: Why on earth did you not say these things two and a half years ago? So many lives might have been saved for better things.

I have been much moved and pleased by the "Three Poems" of Miss Winifred Welles in the September number, and hope you will give us the pleasure of reading many more from the same pen.

Kindly continue my subscription for the year.

DOWNINGTON, PA.

A. ROBINSON McILVAINE.

MAKE IT SO

Sir,—Aye! "Treason must be made odious." More power to your elbow, as Connolley said to Rory O'More.

BROOKLINE, MASS.

WALTER C. TAYLOR.